and Corporate Law

DEAR PARTICIPANTS

We are pleased to welcome you to the 15th Summer School on European Business Law at the Center for Business and Corporate Law at the Heinrich Heine University in Düsseldorf.

With significant scientific support from our joint partners, the Interdisciplinary Center Herzliya (Israel) and the University of Tilburg (The Netherlands), you will be part of an intensive program on European and International Business Law, conducted by experienced speakers from academia and the legal practice.

The comprehensive curriculum on European and International Business Law enables you to expand your knowledge of Business Law in an interdisciplinary and European context. It is also a unique opportunity to improve your professional and scientific skills in the areas of Corporate, Restructuring and Competition.

Apart from the academic experience, you have the unique opportunity to network with law firm representatives, academics and a group of highly qualified participants from all over the world. These cultural and social opportunities will also enrich your stay at the Summer School, Heinrich Heine University and Düsseldorf.

Enjoy your experience!

Best wishes,

Therefore, he is specialized in all questions concerning European Union Law and German public law.

At Heinrich Heine University in Düsseldorf and at the University of Cergy-Pontoise (France) he gives lectures on the jurisprudence of the CJEU, fundamental rights and constitutional law.

Monday (July 8, 2019), 10:00

Introduction to European Law

Program Schedule

Prof. Dr. Carsten Jungmann,
LL.M. (Yale), M.Sc. (Leicester)

Prof. Dr. Carsten Jungmann is Program Director at Bucerius Law School (Hamburg). At this institution, he is a member of the steering committee of the Bucerius Master program and coordinates the Diploma in Business Law Program at WHU - Otto Beisheim School of Management. In addition, he serves for the BIRKENSTOCK Group as Group Director Corporate Law & Structure and as a member of the Supervisory Board. Finally, he is a certified compliance officer and a practicing lawyer and business mediator.

Prof. Jungmann studied at the universities of Edinburgh and Bonn, where he was also employed at the Institute for Commercial and Business Law and completed his doctoral degree. Furthermore, he has obtained both, a Master of Laws from Yale Law School (USA) and a Master of Science in Finance from the University of Leicester (UK). Prof. Jungmann spent a year as an academic visitor at the London School of Economics and Political Science and was a visiting faculty member at the University of Surrey (UK) and at the Ludwig-Maximilians-University of Munich. He teaches various corporate and banking law related topics not only at Bucerius Law School but also in the Master of Laws in Cross Cultural Business Practice Program of the Université de Fribourg (Switzerland), at the University of Luxembourg and in the Master of Auditing program of Leuphana University (Lüneburg).

Monday (July 8, 2019), 13:00 and 15.00

Responsibility and Liability of Board Members

The management board is responsible for running the stock corporation and for its representation to third parties. In addition, it sets up long term goals and guidelines. Other functions of the management board are bookkeeping and the presentation of the annual accounts and reports to the general meetings that it is required to convene. The board members also have the power to represent the company in court proceedings. The members of the management board are appointed by the supervisory board for a renewable period of up to five years. Dismissal is restricted to severe reasons of gross breach of duty or incapacity and can only be effected by the supervisory board. The management board's actions in running the company's business are constrained by various statutory duties, especially by the duty of care and the duty of loyalty. Board members will be held liable for any violation of these duties. Sec. 93 of the German Stock Corporation Act contains, inter alia, the rule that the members of the management board are liable for damages that the company suffers as a result of their breach of duty. The general purpose of this rule is to protect the company's funds. What a breach of duty is and in which cases such a breach leads to the liability of a board member, however, are questions that are difficult to answer.

Program Schedule

Dr. Martin Sura

Martin Sura is Partner of Hogan Lovells LLP. He has more than 20 years of experience in advising and defending clients in antitrust agency investigations into complex mergers or alleged cartel conduct, and in antitrust litigation, both in Germany and internationally.

Martin's "outstanding industry knowledge" (Legal 500) has recently led clients from the automotive, building materials, food and retail, industrial goods and insurance sectors to entrust him with guiding them through high stakes investigations and litigation. Martin has a track record in obtaining merger approvals in concentrated industries, often with no or only light concessions to the agencies or in helping his clients to get off lightly in cartel investigations. His "insight into the workings of the regulators" (Legal 500) and his courtroom experience make him an advisor of choice in the growing area of private enforcement of cartel damages.

Clients and peers alike regard Martin as a leader in his field and praise his "personal attention to the instructions" (Legal 500), or his "work ethic and professional approach" (Chambers). Martin is ranked as a leading competition law practitioner by The International Who's Who of Competition Lawyers and Economists, Chambers, PLC, and JUVE. He co-authors the leading Langen/Bunte commentary on German and EU competition law and is a frequent speaker at conferences. Martin leads Hogan Lovells' German Antitrust practice and has worked in our Hamburg and Brussels offices before taking his current position in our Dusseldorf office.

Düsseldorf

Historically the river Rhine has been Düsseldorf's natural link across borders to other cities and countries. It has provided a continuous flow of trade and a constant exchange of ideas and has thus been the source of the friendliness that has become a distinguishing mark of the Rhinelander. [...] Geographically and economically, the city lies at the heart of Western Europe. It is therefore not surprising that the state capital with almost 600,000 inhabitants has been able to build such strong international connections. Düsseldorf has established itself as a major economic partner in the European Community and as an important scientific and cultural hub in Germany's most populous federal state: North Rhine-Westphalia.

Düsseldorf, an internationally-noted banking centre and home of continental Europe's largest Japanese expatriate community, has an outstanding creative climate, to which numerous industrial designers, commercial artists, product developers and advertising agencies contribute. The new and growing Harbour Media Centre provides a setting for several top-flight communications companies and photography studios. Dubbed the Paris of Germany, Düsseldorf boasts a fashion industry which contributes to the charm and "joie de vivre" of the city. In summers its famous and elegant boulevard known as the Kö (Königsallee) turns into a vast café – a place to see and be seen. Tree-lined promenades, interspersed with beer gardens, offer inviting places to stroll and watch the boats on the Rhine or look at the eye-catching Art Nouveau facades on the opposite bank of the river.

Meadows and parks provide extensive grounds for those keen on sports, and a setting for the annual Kirmes (outdoor fair) on the Rhine. The Old Town is a popular entertainment area and one of Düsseldorf's most extensive pedestrian districts. It abounds with narrow alleys, restaurants, cafes and pubs as well as old-fashioned comfort and hospitality. This historic core of the city survived World War II intact and is still carefully preserved today.

Under Jan Wellem of the Palatinate, who reigned from 1679 to 1716, the town began to thrive, and the foundation was laid for the rich and multifaceted cultural life which can be found today. The Deutsche Oper am Rhein offers classical and modern repertoire and remarkable ballet performances. The theatre scene is varied, with an internationally renowned playhouse as its focal point, plus a political cabaret, numerous studio theatres and the puppet theatre. The concert hall or Tonhalle stands out for its artistic design as well as its diverse music programme. All aspects of modern art are very well represented at the State Art Collection Kunstsammlung. Düsseldorf's Academy of Fine Arts is one of the leading art schools in Germany. With numerous internationally known galleries Düsseldorf is one of the European art centres. [...] Apart from the Heinrich Heine University and the Academy of Fine Arts, Düsseldorf is the home of a number of research institutes and educational facilities; among them the Robert Schumann Conservatory, the University of Applied Sciences (Fachhochschule) and the Academy of Business and Administration.

Düsseldorf

Even though the French emperor Napoleon I had planned to found a university in Düsseldorf in 1811, with the Rhine area being thought of as an intellectual buffer zone between France and Prussia, Düsseldorf had to wait another century for its university. In 1907 the Düsseldorf Academy for Applied Medicine was founded and opened together with the newly built Municipal Hospital, which was the most modern clinical complex in the German Empire at that time. Since the Academy was not chartered as a university, it was only allowed to instruct medical trainees. The academy itself, supported by the local population, launched several initiatives to change the status of the institution. In 1923 they finally succeeded when a university charter permitting the right to lecture students was given to the Medical Academy of Düsseldorf. The study of dental medicine was subsequently incorporated, and by 1935 doctoral degrees could be awarded in Düsseldorf. After World War II, the federal state of North Rhine-Westphalia and the city of Düsseldorf signed a contract which stated that the federal state would take over the Medical Academy, while the hospitals remained municipally owned. In November 1965 the Medical Academy became the University of Düsseldorf and in January 1966 it became a university with a Medical Faculty and a combined Faculty of Arts and Natural Sciences.

In December 1988 the University Senate decided to change the institution's name to Heinrich Heine University Düsseldorf, in commemoration of one of the city's most renowned sons, Heinrich Heine, whose critical and inquisitive poetic mind reached out across national borders and fought against small-mindedness. Today the university forms the backbone of Düsseldorf's academic reputation. Faced with nationwide cuts in university spending, the university has continued to thrive. Despite its recent founding, it has gained a reputation usually associated with universities rich in age and tradition. The university's continuous development has made it home to a distinguished range of subjects, including medical science, natural sciences, economics, law and the humanities. The degree requirements allow for numerous combinations of subjects. Study programs can be tailored to fit individual needs. Some subjects, such as Literary Translation, Yiddish Culture, Language and Literature and Media Science are unique features of the curriculum. Social Sciences and Linguistics rank prominently in comparisons. Further specialties in the Faculty of Arts include Modern Japan Studies and German as a Foreign Language, which address the needs of the international business community.

The present Law Faculty is one of the youngest in Germany. It is housed in two modern, spacious buildings that were constructed, respectively in 1996 and 2005, and which are specially equipped for legal studies. The buildings offer an excellent working environment to the approximately 1,500 people from Germany and beyond who study at the Faculty of Law. The comparatively low number of approximately 200 students who begin legal studies each year allows for outstanding conditions for study, characterized by close personal contact between students and faculty members, and distinguishing academic teaching in Düsseldorf from other faculties in Germany.
