Responsibility and Liability of Board Members

The management board is responsible for running the stock corporation and for its representation to third parties. In addition, it sets up long term goals and guidelines. Other functions of the management board are bookkeeping and the presentation of the annual accounts and reports to the general meetings that it is required to convene. The board members also have the power to represent the company in court proceedings. The members of the management board are appointed by the supervisory board for a renewable period of up to five years. Dismissal is restricted to severe reasons of gross breach of duty or incapacity and can only be effected by the supervisory board. The management board's actions in running the company's business are constrained by various statutory duties, especially by the duty of care and the duty of loyalty. Board members will be held liable for any violation of these duties. Sec. 93 of the German Stock Corporation Act contains, inter alia, the rule that the members of the management board are liable for damages that the company suffers as a result of their breach of duty. The general purpose of this rule is to protect the company's funds. What a breach of duty is and in which cases such a breach leads to the liability of a board member, however, are questions that are difficult to answer.

Exposing FinTech – From Added Value and Regulation

Only a few themes evolve on such a dramatic speed as financial technology does. FinTech, DLT, Blockchain, Crypto and many more buzzwords are extremely fashionable and, in particular, are keeping everybody busy. For almost twenty years now, FinTech led to an ever more questionable raison d'être of common financial intermediaries. Is the rise of FinTech the flipside of the same coin where the fall of banks becomes more than a prediction? And which seat is taken by a lawyer, regulator, or supervisor in the FinTech Game? In this lecture, we explore the economic and regulatory perspective on FinTech, its evolution, status quo and some outlook. Where is the added value in FinTech, what novelty is actually associated with it, and why does FinTech changes the mind and skill set financial services lawyers? We will wander through history of financial technology, take a look on FinTech's added value now and then, try to develop the regulator's perspective on financial technology in the EU and beyond, and finally define the abilities of lawyers in the 21st century. The lecture comprises several case studies from well-known FinTech unicorns such as eToro, TradeRepublic, N26, and many more.

Düsseldorf

Historically the river Rhine has been Düsseldorf's natural link across borders to other cities and countries. It has provided a continuous flow of trade and a constant exchange of ideas and has thus been the source of the friendliness that has become a distinguishing mark of the Rhineland. Geographically and economically, the city lies at the heart of Western Europe. It is therefore not surprising that the state capital with almost 600,000 inhabitants has been able to build such strong international connections. Düsseldorf has established itself as a major economic partner in the European Community and as an important scientific and cultural hub in Germany's most populous federal state: North Rhine-Westphalia.

Düsseldorf, an internationally-noted banking centre and home of continental Europe's largest Japanese expatriate community, has an outstanding creative climate, to which numerous industrial designers, commercial artists, product developers and advertising agencies contribute. The new and growing Harbour Media Centre provides a setting for several top-flight communications companies and photography studios. Dubbed the Paris of Germany, Düsseldorf boasts a fashion industry which contributes to the charm and "joie de vivre" of the city. In summers its famous and elegant boulevard known as the Kö (Königsallee) turns into a vast café – a place to see and be seen. Tree-lined promenades, interspersed with beer gardens, offer inviting places to stroll and watch the boats on the Rhine or look at the eye-catching Art Nouveau facades on the opposite bank of the river.

Meadows and parks provide extensive grounds for those keen on sports, and a setting for the annual Kirmes (outdoor fair) on the Rhine. The Old Town is a popular entertainment area and one of Düsseldorf's most extensive pedestrian districts. It abounds with narrow alleys, restaurants, cafes and pubs as well as old-fashioned comfort and hospitality. This historic core of the city survived World War II intact and is still carefully preserved today.

Under Jan Wellem of the Palatinate, who reigned from 1679 to 1716, the town began to thrive, and the foundation was laid for the rich and multifaceted cultural life which can be found today. The Deutsche Oper am Rhein offers classical and modern repertoire and remarkable ballet performances. The theatre scene is varied, with an internationally renowned playhouse as its focal point, plus a political cabaret, numerous studio theatres and the puppet theatre. The concert hall or Tonhalle stands out for its artistic design as well as its diverse music programme. All aspects of modern art are very well represented at the State Art Collection Kunstsammlung. Düsseldorf's Academy of Fine Arts is one of the leading art schools in Germany. With numerous internationally known galleries Düsseldorf is one of the European art centres. Apart from the Heinrich Heine University and the Academy of Fine Arts, Düsseldorf is the home of a number of research institutes and educational facilities; among them the Robert Schumann Conservatory, the University of Applied Sciences (Fachhochschule) and the Academy of Business and Administration.
